Malaika Parillon Langlais Baron's winning flag design flies above Hackney Town Hall as part of the Council's Black History Season

HACKNEY's Black History Season kicked off with the hoisting of a flag – designed by 13-year-old Malaika Parillon Langlais Baron, from The Urswick School – above the Town Hall this month.

The young artist won against 75 other schoolchildren with her vibrant design, which was picked out by a panel of judges. Malaika said: "I feel a sense of pride seeing my flag design fly over Hackney Town Hall. I hope it will draw attention to black history and inspire others." Other highlights of the Council-run season of events include the exhibition 'Roots, Rhythms & Records: The Sounds and Stories of African & Caribbean Music in Hackney', which is showing at Hackney Museum until March next year. As part of the celebrations, and to coincide with the 70th anniversary of the Windrush generation, Connect Hackney put together a booklet drawing together the memories of Hackney's own Windrush residents. See pages 6-7.

Last stop for say on bus cuts

Route 242 is the only bus route serving the Clapton Park estate. It was cut back from Tottenham Court Road to St Paul's last year and no longer serves the West End. Under TfL's proposals, the route would be diverted at Dalston to run to Aldgate, which would be the first stop to get on the London Underground

RESIDENTS are being urged to have their say on wide-ranging cuts to bus services in Hackney before it's too late.

Transport for London (TfL) has launched a public consultation on its 'bus modernisation' programme, which closes on 9 November.

The proposals affect 16 bus routes in the borough, involving cuts to routes and frequency. The most significant proposal will see the withdrawal of Route 48, removing the link from Hackney to London Bridge.

The Council wants to make sure affected residents are aware of the plans and don't miss their opportunity to give their views to TfL and the Mayor of London.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, said: "Nearly half the 33

WHAT THIS MEANS FOR HACKNEY

- Withdrawal of Route 48 (Walthamstow to London Bridge for Guys Hospital)
- Route 67 withdrawn between Dalston Junction and Aldgate
- Route 242 withdrawn between Dalston Junction and St Paul's and extended to Aldgate to replace the 67 bus
- Route 476 cut back to King's Cross (from Euston)
- Route 388 cut back from Elephant & Castle to Finsbury Circus
- Route 19 cut back to Holborn and no longer serving the West End
- Night bus Route N271

withdrawn: Night Buses would no longer be serving New North Road and Baring Street affected bus routes in these proposals are in Hackney, which is completely disproportionate. We know many of our residents rely on these services for all sorts of reasons, and some will be severely affected, particularly older and more vulnerable people.

"The Overground means we are now better connected but bus services are still essential to how we move around the borough – for school, work or every day life.

"The 242 is the only bus route serving the Clapton Park estate. Plans to cut back and reduce frequency will mean longer journey times and result in it being diverted at Dalston to run to Aldgate, which would be the first stop to get on the Underground.

"We appreciate TfL is under pressure to save money but these changes will have a huge impact on our borough's mobility.

RESIDENTS' VIEWS ON BUS CUTS

EARLIER this year the Council carried out a public consultation on the impact of bus cuts. The survey provided some useful insights and strong opinion:

"I have terrible arthritis and waiting longer for buses is causing me a lot of pain and suffering"

"The 388 bus occasionally disappears from schedules when due and no bus arrives, so waiting time can become 20 minutes (on route from Stratford to Hackney)"

"I have noticed the 48 bus route is infrequent and 242 is shortened. I can't afford Tube fares and suffer from anxiety using the Underground"

"Re-instate the 242 full length. In a day of increasing populations, cutting routes is absurd – there should be more not less" bus frequencies in Hackney over the past year without consulting anyone.

"We've been calling on them to be more transparent and listen to the impact on people, so it's now important that we and residents in the borough make our voices heard."

Hackney has seen a number of frequency reductions across routes over the past year (Nos 42, 48, 106, 141, 236, 276, 279 and 343, and Night Buses), along with the cutback of the 277 from Highbury to Dalston Junction.

This new consultation proposes more frequency reductions and the loss of north-south links across the river with the withdrawal of the 48 bus route.

A BRAND-NEW pavilion and changing rooms have officially opened at Hackney Marshes, as the final part of the Council's transformation of the area.

The North Marsh Pavilion, which replaces old facilities that had come to the end of their life, will provide 16 new changing rooms, four officials rooms, cricket practice nets and a social space overlooking the cricket pitch.

To mark the opening of the new pavilion, on 19 September, Stoke Newington Cricket Club, Pedro Youth Football Club and Daubeney Primary School girls' football team hosted matches, watched by representatives from the Council and guests from the England and Wales Cricket Board (ECB) and the Football Foundation.

The opening of the North Marsh Pavilion completes the Council's transformation of Hackney Marshes. This has included new all-weather pitches and improved landscaping at Mabley Green, bringing back the football pitches at the East Marsh after the London Olympics, developing the Hackney Marshes Centre, new cycling and walking routes to link the Marshes to the Olympic Park, and the refurbishment of Cow Bridge.

The ECB and the Football Foundation contributed

Tenants urged: check your heating now before the temperature drops

AS THE nights draw in, the Council is urging tenants to check their heating before the cold weather begins to bite.

The Council receives a high number of calls about faulty heating systems as temperatures begin to drop.

This can lead to a backlog of emergency call-outs that mean some residents may face waiting for heating repairs. To prevent being left waiting in the cold, Council tenants that have their own heating systems – not a communal heating system – are being advised to check their heating now and report any problems immediately.

It is quick and simple to test your heating and will leave you reassured that you are prepared for winter. All you need to do is:

- Make sure you have both gas and electric credit on your meters
- Turn on your programmer to heating
- Turn on all radiator valves
- Turn the room thermostat to maximum
- The heating valves should open and the pump should run

- Radiators should now get hot
- Run for five minutes and then turn off.

Steve Platt, Head of Building Maintenance and Estate Environment, said: “It is very important that you check your heating now. Your boiler will likely be working but it may only be in hot water mode.

“But you should check your heating is ready for winter. We don't want any of our tenants to be left waiting for repairs and urge you to work with us on helping to prevent any problems.”

If the heating does not come on after carrying out these checks, Council tenants can report the repair online at: hackney.gov.uk/repairs; or call: 020 8356 3691.

THE designer of the internationally recognised peace symbol, Gerald Holtom, has been acknowledged with a blue plaque unveiled earlier this month on Blackstock Road in Finsbury Park.

The plaque, funded by the Council, was placed at the former offices of 'Peace News', where Gerald presented his design 60 years ago, as a symbol to unite protesters who eventually came under the banner of the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament (CND).

The origin of the symbol included the use of the semaphore flag signalling system for the letters 'N' and 'D', standing for 'nuclear disarmament'.

There was no copyright put on the design and it was quickly adopted across the world as a global symbol for peace.

Daughter Rosie Holtom

said: "Everyone in the family is proud of the symbol and how it has come to represent peace and hope all over the world."

The Speaker of Hackney, Clare Potter, added:

"Hackney has a long history of being a home for radical thought, from the dissidents buried at Abney Park Cemetery to the conscientious objectors of the CND movement.

"It's great that we can celebrate this heritage by acknowledging the local origin of the world-recognised peace symbol designed by Gerald Holtom."

Stik's artwork auction raises £150,000 for theatre group

ICONIC artwork by Hackney artist Stik, which had spent close to a decade nailed to a brick wall in the East End, sold for £150,000 at auction house Christie's earlier this month.

Theatre group Cardboard Citizens will be the beneficiary from the sale of the eight-foot-tall wooden sculpture called 'Up On The Roof'. The theatre group, based in Tower Hamlets, works with people affected by homelessness, building their confidence and helping them learn new skills.

Adrian Jackson, CEO/artistic director, Cardboard Citizens, said: "It's so wonderful that all these years after we first met Stik on a project, the piece he made for us then ends up enabling us to do lots more projects like that."

Stik added: "Cardboard Citizens gave me support and encouragement when I needed it and I know this money will be well spent helping many others who are in need of a little help to realise their dreams."

Raising awareness of homelessness

FROM advice on getting into work to support around tenancies, arrears and evictions, over 125 residents came to Hackney Town Hall Square to get advice at an event to mark World Homelessness Day.

The Council teamed up with charities Shelter and Thames Reach for the event on 10 October. One of the visitors was Robert Meade, 57, from Stoke Newington, who came along to speak to his housing support officer Samantha Daniel.

He was helped by the Council into temporary accommodation. Robert said: "I see other people sleeping on the buses and think I should be doing that, but I have a bed. In the future I do want to get my own place. I want to have my friends over to celebrate Christmas and be more independent."

As well as advice for those already receiving support, there was also information on how to refer someone who is rough sleeping and what to do if you think you are going to become homeless.

HUNDREDS of Council tenants most affected by construction work on thousands of new homes Hackney is building could get priority on moving into them, under a new policy.

The Council's Keeping Communities Together policy gives residents living close to new Council developments whose current Council home doesn't meet their needs – for reasons like overcrowding or medical needs – the first opportunity to live there.

The Council will deliver nearly 2,000 new homes, three schools and a new leisure centre at more than 20 sites by 2022 – with over half of the new housing for social rent and shared ownership.

Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: "With 13,000 families waiting for a Council home, I'm proud that Hackney is building thousands of new homes across the borough – despite receiving barely a penny of Government funding.

"Rather than selling off land to private developers, we're building these homes ourselves, and I'm determined that they go to local people in need rather than investors or buy-to-let landlords.

"This policy does just that – ensuring that those most affected by construction on their doorstep get first dibs on new genuinely affordable Council homes once they're complete."

Tia Son Nguyen and her family lived at the Kings Crescent estate in Stoke Newington for 17 years before moving into a bigger, high-quality new property last year under a trial of the policy.

She now lives there with her husband and two children.

Her 17-year-old son Johnson Le said: "Having

This approach adds to other ways the Council prioritises the homes it builds for local people, including guaranteeing any residents whose home is demolished the right to return to a new one, and prioritising homes sold for shared ownership or outright sale to buyers living or working in Hackney.

At the first phases of the award-winning Kings

Crescent regeneration project in Stoke Newington no homes were sold overseas, while all shared ownership properties at the Great Eastern development in London Fields were sold to Hackney residents.

Olive Johnson, who came to the UK from Jamaica, remembers working in the UK

"I came by air. My sister was here, married with two children. I came to Tresham Avenue in Hackney – I've always been in Hackney. I applied to do nursing. Nursing is my life and I enjoy every minute of it. I was in Whipps Cross Hospital. . . You see, the British people, their children didn't like nursing and most of the men said their wives shouldn't be nurses. They wanted them to be at home to give them their slippers and their dinners when they come home at night. A woman's place is in the home – that was the British men. And, of course, the money wasn't that good. But nursing is nice. It was all I wanted. . . It was lovely, lovely, lovely. I enjoyed every minute. I got the life I wanted in London, very much so. London is just London. And Hackney, more than all, is lovely."

Generation Windrush

Read extracts from new booklet 'Windrush, Stories of a Hackney Generation' produced by older people's programme Connect Hackney

OVER one thousand people arrived at Tilbury Docks, Essex, on 21 June 1948, carried from the Caribbean on the British troopship HMT Empire Windrush in response to a Commonwealth-wide call to help ease the UK's post-war labour shortage.

Around half a million more were to follow before 1971. This year marks the 70th anniversary of the Windrush generation, and to mark their experiences and contributions to British life, Connect Hackney has put together a booklet, drawing together the memories of Hackney's own Windrush residents.

"It's really important that as a borough with a large Caribbean community, we celebrate the 70th anniversary of Windrush arriving in the UK," writes Cllr Anntoinette Bramble, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, in the booklet's introduction.

She adds: "Alongside our celebrations it's also important for us to honour and respect people affected by this history in the present, and realise the hardships that communities like the Windrush generation still face today, and how as a society we can reflect on history to overcome this.

The booklet and accompanying podcasts are available at Hackney Archives, explains Lola Akindoyin, Connect Hackney's Programme Director. She says: "It's great that generations for years to come will be able to learn from and celebrate Hackney's Windrush residents."

The booklet, 'Windrush, Stories of a Hackney Generation' was launched at the Council's Caribbean Tea Party on 3 October.

It is produced by Connect Hackney, a programme at Hackney CVS, which aims to improve the wellbeing of residents aged 50 and over.

The £5.8million scheme, which runs until 2021, is funded by Big Lottery Fund's 'Fulfilling Lives, Ageing Better' programme.

Connect Hackney aims to improve the wellbeing of residents aged 50 and over

DID YOU KNOW?

Ngoma

"I was born in Barbados, and I started school early, because at four I was able to read. And then at eight, that's when my parents sent for me here and that's when the problems started. . .

I knew they were my parents because they'd sent letters and I'd sent letters but I couldn't tell you what they looked like. When I landed at the airport, the only way we recognised each other was they had a placard with my name and I had a piece of paper with what to look out for. I saw a couple of people with a sign with my name on and I figured they must be my parents.

It took several years to kind of come to terms with that.

I came in 1963 in the coldest winter on record – I came straight from the hottest island in the Caribbean to the coldest place on the face of the planet. I came in November, so it wasn't that great when I landed at Heathrow airport. I never really recovered from the snow, to tell you the truth. . ."

Lloyd

"I didn't want my mother to leave so I thought if I did something, like if I was sick or injured maybe, she would stay. So I went and stepped on a piece of glass and cut my foot deliberately in the hope that she wouldn't leave. She came, gave me a cuddle, put a plaster on my foot and handed me back to my grandmother – and off she went. I've still got the scar in the bottom of my foot.

She eventually sent for us, and we came over on the cruise ship Ascania. . . We came to Portsmouth. We took a train up to London. We were looking out the window as the train came into the station, and although I didn't have a memory of my mother in the Caribbean other than cutting my foot to make her stay, I was able to recognise her on the platform, and I said, "There's mum!"

In England you were given toys that were ready-made: cowboy and Indian, guns, bow and arrow, Ludo and all kind of board games. But in the Caribbean you had to make everything. I was amazed how backward the English children were in terms of, if they didn't have a toy they were lost."

- Lloyd French (right), who came to the UK from Montserrat aged 7, and Ngoma Bishop (above), who came from Barbados aged 8, remember how the Windrush generation were separated from their parents

Veronica Husbands (right), who came to the UK from Dominica, and Dahlia Douglas (below), who came from Guyana aged 10, remember the racism they encountered on arrival

Veronica

"Walking the street, close to the houses, and you say, 'oh it's drizzling' – and when you look up people are spitting on you. I've been hit with coal. One day my mum came home with her hand bleeding – boys were flinging eggs at her and cut her. It was tough going, you had to have good nerves to deal with the public in those days.

Things have improved tremendously now. I don't know who made the changes or how the changes came about, but I think why we are being treated differently now is simply because black people have opened their eyes to reality and don't just sit and take what is piled in our face."

Ann Canaii, who came to the UK from St Lucia aged 14, remembers Hackney's nightlife

"We came by boat. It was quite a nice journey until we got to Gibraltar. I went on deck and I passed out and then I caught pneumonia. I lost so much weight that by the time I came I couldn't fit in my clothes. . .

I cried for 13 years! It was so dismal, it was damp, it was dirty, it was ugly – it was everything I hadn't expected. It was so cold, so cold. I just couldn't get used to it. I got chilblains on my toes and my fingers – until this day my fingers never went back to normal.

I met up with Saint Lucian friends every single weekend and we went to dances. There were dances at Commercial Street and Hackney Town Hall, then we went to loads of parties in homes, and we went to Roaring Twenties in the West End. We listened to everything – jive, reggae, soul – and we danced merengue!"

Dahlia

"Back home mum looked after me, but when she came here she couldn't get a job teaching, although it was the same type of certificate back home because it was a British colony, so mum worked in a factory and I had a childminder. She was a wonderful white woman and her name was Gertrude and she showered me with love.

In those days they used to call us coloured and coloured people couldn't get Council houses. . . Jewish people are the only ones that rented to us. And I remember in Ridley Road, certain people wouldn't sell to us. You would stand at a bus stop and people would come and spit at people – 'go back to your country. What are you doing here?' Lots of things like that.

But my parents always instilled in me that I am worthy and my education mattered."

Eugenia Fredrick remembers housing conditions in the UK

"It was all one family in the house – my dad and his sisters and their husbands, we all lived in one house. So we were on the top floor, and his sister was on the other floor. And all the boys used to be in the basement in that house. And there was a toilet – it was outside, but you could open the door inside to go. But there was no bath. You had to go to the Hackney Baths. You'd go and queue up and then you go in and they let the water in for you. If it's too hot you call out, 'cold water in number so and so'. Or if it's too cold you say, 'hot water in number so and so'. And then you have your bath. When you've finished, you've had your half hour bath, you come out and they come and wash the bath and someone else comes and uses the bath. Heating was a paraffin heater, you'd go and buy paraffin to put in the heater to warm up, to dry the clothes in the room. And sometimes you would do your toast on top of the heater. . ."

By Harriet Worsley

MY FATHER knew that if I was arrested one more time, it would be serious," says Paul Anderson, looking back on the moment that changed his life for good.

"So, he sent me to Nigeria, where he was from, and where I met my cousins and the rest of my family... They lived on so much less but had such rich lives. And the way they treated me with such respect... It changed everything for me."

Born in Islington and raised in Camden, Paul was kicked out of school at 15. From that moment on, he recalls: "I was hanging out with groups of toxic guys, getting into trouble, getting caught up in ongoing conflicts. One of my best friends got shot and died..."

The trip to Nigeria, however turned his life around. He says: "Really, it was a broader journey, discovering who I was and what my life was about."

And so, on his return to the UK, he went back to college to do his A-levels, at the age of 21. He also began volunteering as a youth worker in Islington while managing and directing an African drumming and dance company called Brekete in his spare time.

A probation officer asked him to give talks to young people about his own experiences growing up, and the consequences of his actions. To his surprise, it turned out he had a real talent for communicating with young people.

"From then on, every year I got a little more work, a little more responsibility, and everything took off," he says.

While working as a senior youth worker for the Regents Park estate in Camden, he was asked to develop some ideas for the area's regeneration plans.

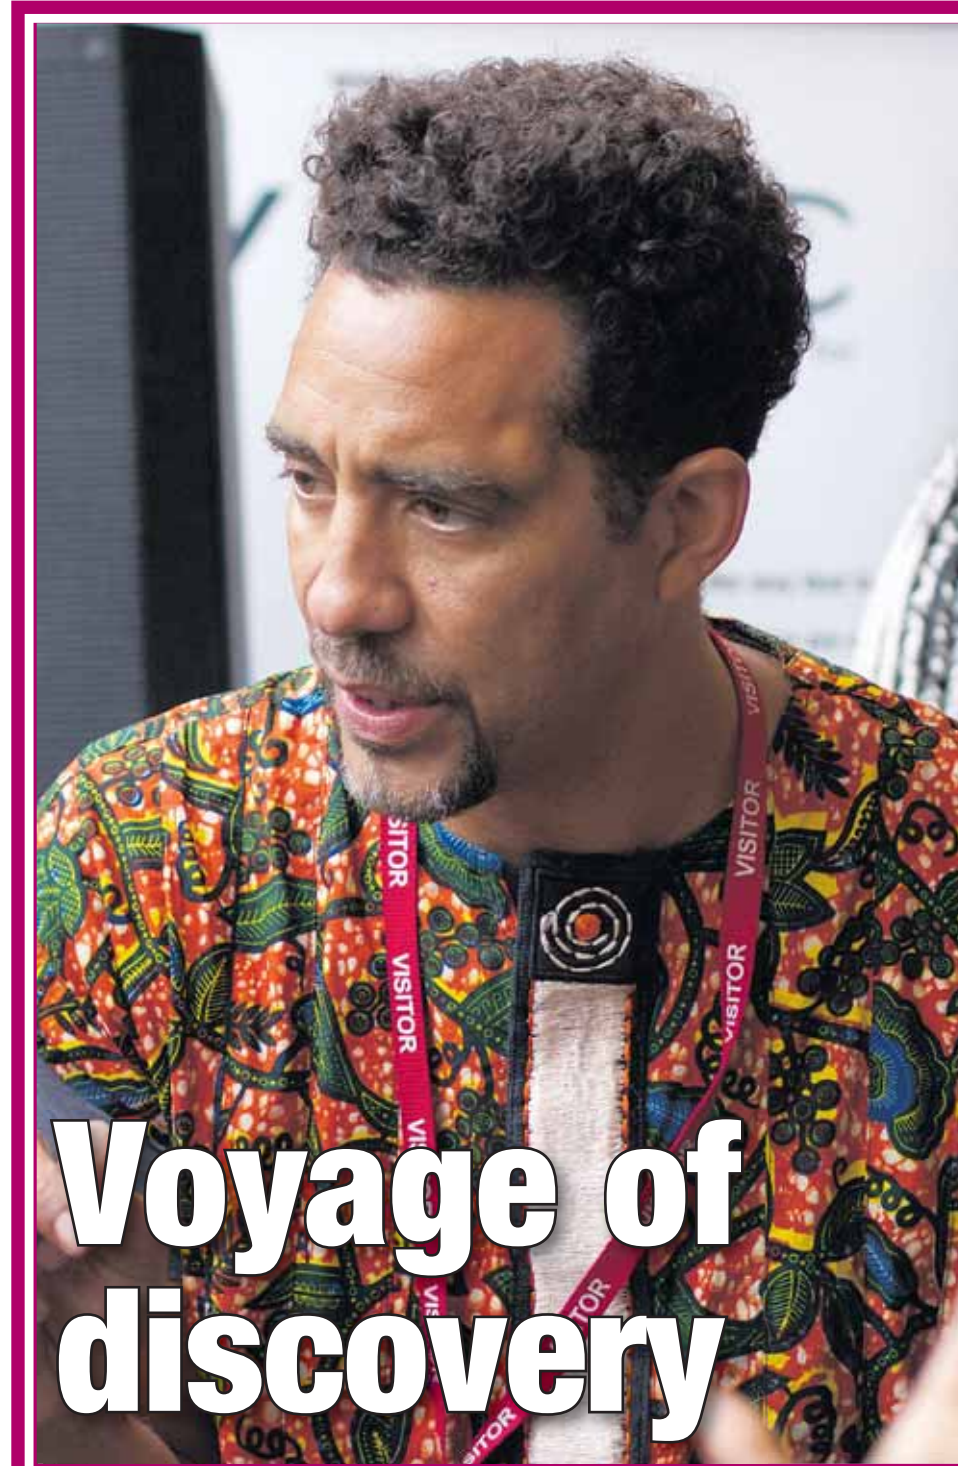

When the borough was granted funding to make all six of his ideas a reality, Paul found himself given the role of Community Development Officer, managing a portfolio of projects and a serious funding pot.

Paul says: "I loved the job, loved working with the area's young people and listening to their ideas, but after six years, I felt it was time to move on."

So Paul found himself in Hackney, working for Renaisi, an award-winning social enterprise, where he developed regeneration schemes in the borough. Paul also won Renaisi a big contract in Luton, where he was to meet his next challenge.

In 2003 Paul became the CEO of the UK Centre for Carnival Arts (UKCCA). There was only one problem. The centre did not yet exist. So Paul raised over £14 million to design, build and run the UK's first dedicated centre for carnival arts, while also running Luton Carnival. He stayed for 10 years until one of his colleagues there asked for his help with another charity, Voyage Youth.

Established by the National Black Police Association (NBPA) in 2002, the charity has a unique remit to build the leadership qualities of marginalised young black people and help them

Paul Anderson MBE is CEO of Hackney-based Voyage Youth charity, which aims to empower young British, black, Asian and minority ethnic (BAME) people to transform their own communities.

Paul was appointed CEO in 2013, and moved the charity to Hackney from south London three years ago. He says: "Hackney has this vision for creating equal opportunities for young black men that makes it really special."

As well as accredited courses within schools, pupil referral units, young offending teams, bail hostels and youth prisons, the charity delivers empowerment and leadership courses from its headquarters in New City College, Shoreditch.

"I want to build a new relationship between the police and young people, to make it easier for young people to trust the police"

Referrals are typically made by schools and, says Paul: "We recruit young people with potential that's going unrealised. Young people who don't have support."

Voyage becomes that support system. Their leadership programme demands that young people turn up every Saturday morning for 12 weeks. Yet incredibly, of the 110 students recruited this year, 103 finished the course.

Nor are students left to their own devices on graduation. Paul continues: "We're there as a ladder of support, from Year 9 all the way to higher education."

Accordingly, he's now running a research project with 12 young people who are part of the Voyage graduate scheme.

Paul explains: "They all graduated from our leadership course in July and we've been asked by the NBPA to explore what kind of promise black police officers could make to their community."

The young people are building questionnaires, holding focus groups and conducting interviews to see what shape the public would like black policing to take in London. They will then present their findings at the NBPA AGM.

Five years after taking the helm, Paul can see the difference the charity makes to young people in the community. "Our graduates keep in touch," he explains. "One of our earliest, Symeon Brown, is now a reporter for Channel 4 News. He comes back to talk to our students about the difference Voyage made to his life, and how they can change theirs."

Paul's own journey could not provide a better example of this. With so much behind him, does he have any ambitions remaining?

"Leroy Logan MBE is our chair at Voyage," he says. "When he was a police officer in my ends, we used to call him names and taunt him as the only black officer. But as we developed a great relationship, he encouraged myself and my peers to stay out of trouble."

Green recognition

THE Council's park staff have celebrated the borough's record 25 Green Flags with a flag-raising ceremony earlier this month.

Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, and Deputy Mayor, Cllr Feryal Demirci, joined staff at St Thomas' Square, a new recipient of the prestigious Green Flag award, to formally thank them for their hard work in achieving the awards.

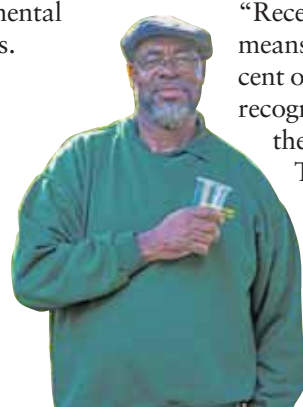

The international Green Flag award scheme is now in its third decade and recognises the world's best maintained green spaces.

The awards highlight parks that are not only well

Cllr Demirci said: “Receiving 25 Green Flags means that over 40 per cent of our parks are now recognised as being some of the best in the country.

This achievement is only possible thanks to our incredible park staff, who I was thrilled to be able to thank for their hard work.”

News in brief

Cleaner vehicle fleet wins national air quality award

A PROJECT by the Council to introduce cleaner vans and trucks into its fleet has been recognised at the National Air Quality Awards earlier this month.

The Council won the Vehicle Fleet Air Quality Initiative of the Year award for its work to expand its bike and electric vehicle fleet and use cleaner fuels for its diesel vehicles. It now has 46 electric vehicles, ranging from vans used by the parking and community library services, to electric buggies used in Hackney's parks.

As part of the project, which was supported with a £400,000 grant from the Mayor of London's Air Quality Fund, electric charging points have been introduced at Council sites across the borough. Around half of the Council's diesel fleet also run on a vegetable oil mix. A fleet of pool bikes, to add to an existing fleet of 50 bikes, are being introduced to encourage staff to cycle between meetings around the borough.

Secret garden's social offers

A GARDEN in Haggerston is looking to welcome new people into its green and leafy haven.

St Mary's Secret Garden is planning to hold a 'garden social' on Tuesdays. Organisers are looking for residents aged 50 and over with learning difficulties to help decide what form these socials should take.

The project is financed by the Big Lottery Fund and will be led by Hackney CVS' Connect Hackney Ageing Better programme, which aims to improve the wellbeing of people aged over 50.

The garden's community projects coordinator, Siobhan MacMahon, said: “We have such a lovely space with plenty of indoor and outdoor areas to explore, and we're really excited to work with attendees to create a fun and engaging programme of activities and events.”

Taster sessions will be held on 23 and 30 October, for people to explore the garden.

To find out more call: 020 7739 2965; email: siobhan@stmarysgarden.org.uk; or visit St Mary's Secret Garden, 50 Pearson Street, E2 8EL, to register your interest.

Top winter gardening tips from parks service staff

Wendy Bowes, head gardener at Hackney

Downs: “When getting your garden ready for winter, people may use electric mowers. Make sure you softly rake through piles of leaves first to make sure there are no hedgehogs or other creatures hiding. Once you have all your leaves and twigs together you can either compost yourself or get a reduced price compost bin from the Council, or put it in your garden waste bin to be recycled.”

Junior Pierre, head gardener at Springfield Park: “You should make sure that the base of your shrubs are warm. The best way to do this is by packing wood chip tree bark around the base, but you can also use leaves or straw. This will protect them from the frost. October is also a great time to plant bulbs.”

Brian Dodd, gardener at Haggerston Park: “Pansies and Polyanthus are good for winter bedding, and are also good for window boxes on balconies, as these are robust winter plants. You will see these being planted in Hackney's parks over autumn.”

Mark Thomas: CHECK UP

PREVIEW

Mark Thomas: Check Up

Until 3 November, Arcola Theatre, 24 Ashwin St, E8 3DL

MARK Thomas is 54, the NHS is 70. The average life expectancy in the UK is 84. If Mark makes it to 84, the NHS will be 100... What will they both look like? That's the premise behind Mark Thomas: Check Up, a one-man show coming to the Arcola after a run at the Edinburgh Fringe that critics have variously praised as 'impassioned and informative', 'devastating' and 'a show that comes from the guts'. The comedian and activist spent a month embedded with an NHS trust and conducted in depth interviews with healthcare experts to gather his material.

You get a canter through the NHS's history, an analysis of our emotional response to it and a devastating dismantlement of current funding cuts.

It's all snappily directed by Nicolas Kent, former Artistic Director of the Tricycle Theatre, and designed to exercise all your facial muscles: you'll laugh and frown in equal measure. So, Check Up. You should really check it out.

Mark Thomas: Check Up, is running at the Arcola Theatre until 3 November. Tickets start at £10. For more information, and to book, visit: www.arcolatheatre.com

Until 21 December, Rich Mix, 35-47 Bethnal Green Rd, E1 6LA

FORGET the A to Z. A new exhibition defines neighbourhoods by the dreams of their inhabitants, or the places where buried treasure might lurk. Artist and cartographer Adam Dant has attracted a cult following for his bizarre, brilliant and intimate maps and drawings, which are now on show at the Rich Mix. In the Mezzanine Gallery you'll find 'London Enraged', where 2,000 years of riots in the capital - from Boudicca's revolt to the 2015 protests about Shoreditch's Cereal Killer Cafe - are collapsed into one space. 'Where to Dig', meanwhile, charts Hackney's pre-industrial mansions, for those who want to wield a shovel and dig for treasure, while in 'A Journey to The Heart of East London' visitors and locals alike attempt to pinpoint the centre of East London (spoiler alert: it's a bin in Westfield, Stratford). A Journey to the Heart of East London is on at the Rich Mix till 21 December. It is free to visit. For more information, visit: richmix.org.uk

Monster madness

Local charity Ministry of Stories has launched a new postal service, just in time for Halloween, to encourage young people to write

WANT to write to a werewolf, or yack with a yeti? A new letter writing service in Hoxton allows you to do just that.

Local charity Ministry of Stories has launched a new postal service, just in time for Halloween.

Children can now write letters to a monster of their choice – yeti, mummy, werewolf, dragon, vampire or a monster in the cupboard – and post them at its shop, Hoxton Street Monster Supplies.

Kirsty Telford, deputy director of the charity that encourages creative writing in young people, said: “The scheme was launched after much lobbying from lonely monsters. It aims to connect curious monsters and young humans in order to better understand each others’ worlds.”

Children, she explained, could now: “Discover what life is like trying to hide your scaly tale on the London Underground, which cupboards offer equal comfort and scaring opportunities, and how to keep your bandages fresh over decades of use.”

Unique replies cost £2 for local children and £5 for others and can be collected from the shop within a month, or delivered to your home for an extra £1.

All profits will be fed into the charity’s services for young people.

The Postal Service will launch on 31 October and the shop will open late, allowing letters to be penned throughout the day and early evening.

STOP – in the name of the junior road safety officers

A TROUPE of junior road safety officers took part in workshops to refresh their road safety skills at Hackney Town Hall last week.

The officers, aged between eight and 11, are tasked with helping to keep their fellow students safe by giving out tips and advice on road safety.

At the workshops, they learnt about encouraging other children to be seen by wearing bright and reflective clothing to make them more visible to road users during the darker winter days, how to encourage people to cycle more and how to give assemblies about road safety. The Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Clare Potter, was also there to greet the new junior road safety officers.

She said: “I was really pleased to be able to see Queensbridge School, who are previous winners of the Junior Road Safety Award, talk to everyone about their work, and find out more about the fantastic work Junior Road Safety Officers do to keep their classmates safe.” Luka, 10, from Woodberry Down School, N16, said: “It’s really fun to keep people safe, so no one gets hurt.”

Logan, nine, from Millfields School, E5, added: “We’ve learnt what you should wear when it’s dark outside and how to check bikes. “The most fun part about being a road safety officer is being able to teach grown-ups to be safe on the road!”

#MadeInHackney workshops inspire young people

A HACKNEY student who became her family’s highest earner at 18 is inspiring other young people to follow in her wake.

Olamide Duyile is a second-year undergraduate at the London School of Economics, having studied at Cardinal Pole Catholic School, E9. She won a full scholarship to an independent free-paying school for sixth form.

She said: “I have been sponsored to attend summer schools at world-leading institutions such as Cambridge, Oxford, LSE, Harvard, Yale, Columbia and UCL and I have interned at firms such as the Bank of America, KPMG, JP Morgan, Lloyds of London and Clifford Chance. Now, I want to come back to my hometown and inspire students with my story.”

Olamide has developed a programme of workshops called #MadeInHackney, and delivered the first at Skinners’ Academy, N4, last month. Her 20-minute assembly was heard by over 150 Year 11 students. She said: “I told students the three factors that were important to my GCSE journey – and will ultimately be important to theirs – were friends, teachers and yourself.”

WITH winter approaching, residents who are more at risk from seasonal flu are being encouraged to have their free flu jab.

Flu, or influenza, is an infectious disease with symptoms including fever, chills, headache, aches and pains in the joints and muscles, and extreme tiredness. And, because flu is a virus, and not a bacteria, antibiotics won't treat it.

Flu can be passed on when a person with the flu coughs or sneezes, which spreads the virus. This is then breathed in by other people or picked up by touching surfaces.

People can help prevent the spread of flu by covering the nose and mouth when coughing or sneezing, washing hands frequently or using hand gels, and binning any used tissues.

Flu can affect anyone but it can be much worse for older people, children and those who have a long-term health condition.

It is important for residents deemed most 'at risk' (see box) to have the flu vaccination this season, even if they were vaccinated last year, because the flu virus changes each year.

Residents should speak to their GP, practice nurse or pharmacist to book a vaccination appointment.

Drugs charity on point with card

A DRUG and alcohol charity committed to helping those who are affected by substance misuse has won a prestigious award. WDP, which runs Hackney's Recovery Service (HRS) with Central and North West London NHS Foundation Trust and St Mungo's charity, was named winner of the 'Digital Innovation of the Year' award at the Third Sector Excellence Awards last month.

Its Capital Card project is a reward card scheme for individuals accessing their services. The more people engage with the service the more points they earn to spend on activities that support their recovery.

The Capital Card was introduced in Hackney last year, and now has 2,250 registered service users and over 20 business supporting the scheme across eight boroughs. HRS, which is commissioned by the Council's Public Health team, offers a number of services to help people recover from alcohol and drug substance misuse.

Help shape health and wellbeing services in south west Hackney

SOUTH west Hackney's health and care organisations want to hear residents' views about how health and wellbeing could be improved where they live.

Their feedback will shape a new model, which will see GP surgeries joining up with hospital, community, mental health, social and voluntary services across eight areas to improve residents' health and wellbeing.

The views of residents that attend GP practices in Beechwood, Dalston, London Fields, Queensbridge, Richmond Road or Sandringham are particularly wanted. To have your say, visit: www.healthwatchhackney.co.uk/neighbourhoods; or attend an event at Tomlinson Centre, E8, on 31 October from 5.30-8pm. Food and refreshments will be provided. Call: 020 7923 8358 to book. Participants will win a £20 Love2Shop voucher.

Just Floating Around art exhibit opens in Homerton hospital

Artist Neville Paine with exhibition curator Shaun Caton (right)

A NEW exhibition is turning hospital halls into sun-drenched fields and pools of fish.

Just Floating Around is the latest show to be exhibited at Homerton hospital's Education Centre and consists of colourful collages.

Created by Neville Paine, each is inspired by the landscape, colours and creatures of the artist's home in the south of France.

Shaun Caton, the exhibition's curator, said: "This is the sort of ultra-positive art that we should encounter in any hospital environment. Its mood is incredibly buoyant and uplifting, it's full of exciting patterns and dazzling colours, people tell me they love it and makes them feel good every time they see it!"

Just Floating Around runs at The Education Centre at Homerton University Hospital until 31 March. Entrance is free.

DID you work at the Metal Box Company in Urswick Road? Staff at Hackney Archives have uncovered hundreds of photographs of the company's events taken by Clapton-based studio RA Gibson.

Gibson's studio recorded the celebrations for the company's diamond jubilee and its centenary as well as Christmas parties, retirement celebrations and staff presentations.

Archives staff are particularly intrigued by two sets of negatives labelled 'Metal Box Initiation' which appear to feature a man wearing tin cans around his neck being carried through the factory on a stretcher. Hackney Archives would love to know more about these initiation ceremonies.

The Metal Box Company's roots in Hackney date back to 1869 when Edward C Barlow was established as a tin can manufacturer. It was acquired by the Metal Box Company in 1929.

The factory closed in the early 1980s, despite a local campaign against the closure. Some of the material relating to the campaign to prevent the factory's closure can be seen at the Archives. The factory buildings on Sutton Place were subsequently demolished and the site is now occupied by residential buildings.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Waterhouse

www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Waterhouse – a social enterprise restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch.

Katsu chicken with Katsu sauce and rice has become one of Waterhouse's most popular specials – a highly satisfying treat consisting of crispy, fried cutlets of chicken dressed in a comforting Katsu sauce and served with a side of rice.

Katsu chicken with Katsu sauce and rice

Serves 4

Preparation time
45 mins

Cooking time
45 mins

Ingredients

- 4 large boneless chicken thighs
- 200ml of vegetable oil
- 150g breadcrumbs
- 1 egg beaten
- Plain flour for dusting
- 1 tbsp of Chinese 5 spice
- 1 tbsp of garlic powder
- 1 tbsp of ginger powder
- 1 tbsp of onion powder
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Rice to serve

For the sauce

- 2 large onions sliced
- 2 large carrots sliced
- 10g ginger diced
- 10g garlic diced
- 2 tbsps of curry powder
- 1 tsp of chilli powder
- 400ml of chicken stock
- 1 tbsp of cornflour
- 30ml of sake or rice vinegar
- 2 tbsps of vegetable oil

Method

- Season the chicken thighs with salt, pepper, 5 spice, garlic, ginger and onion powder and marinate overnight with some oil
- Preheat the oven to 140 degrees. Place the chicken on a tray and cook in the oven for about 20 mins. Put aside to cool and start the sauce
- Place the onions, ginger and garlic with some oil in a pot to cook for about 10 mins. Then add the carrots, curry powder and chilli powder and cook for 2 mins and add the rice vinegar
- Once the rice vinegar has evaporated add the chicken stock and bring to the boil and simmer for 5 mins
- To breadcrumb the chicken, get 3 bowls with flour in one, the beaten egg in the other and breadcrumbs in the last bowl. Dunk the cooked chicken into each bowl
- Put the coated chicken into the fridge to rest so that the crumbs start to harden with the egg
- In another bowl mix the cornflour and 1 tbsp of water to make a slurry and add to the sauce
- Shallow fry the chicken in 200ml of vegetable oil in a pan on a medium heat until the sides go golden brown
- Finish the chicken in the oven on 160 degrees for about 10 mins. Serve with rice

Have your say on blue badge parking in Hackney

THE Council is seeking views from resident blue badge holders to introduce personalised disabled bays in Hackney and amend the current companion badge parking permissions.

The aim is to better protect disabled parking for residents who most need it, and make parking for other blue badge holders simpler to understand.

For a number of years, the Council has received complaints from residents who have been assigned a disabled bay, in instances where they have returned home to find their bay occupied by another blue badge holder's vehicle, and are unable to park close to home.

Many of those affected have asked for these bays to not parked in them.

Parking Services are proposing to change the current companion badge parking permissions, which will give holders the same parking rights as resident permit holders, with the added benefit of being able to park in unassigned disabled bays in their home parking zone.

The consultation closes on 5 November.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2018. Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR PHILIP GLANVILLE

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville was directly elected by the borough in 2018. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall.

To book an appointment, e-mail: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 2212. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney, who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Clare Potter.
